Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Sunday 31 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold and mostly dry on Sunday.

Today:
Further snow showers over Shetland could give moderate falls. A few wintry showers over northern and eastern coasts but most places will be dry and sunny, though cold.

Tonight:
Further snow showers affecting some northern and eastern coastal areas giving some accumulations, but most will stay clear and cold with severe frost.

Monday:
Mostly dry with sunny spells, just the odd wintry shower near northern and eastern coasts. Sleet and snow may spread to the south later.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cold and unsettled with snow and rain at times in south and east, with some disruptive snow possible over higher ground. Brighter northwest and far north, wintry showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.